

940.55
PEL
1974

Race to Pearl Harbor

The Failure of the Second London Naval
Conference and the Onset of World War II

STEPHEN E. PELZ

Harvard University Press Cambridge, Massachusetts 1974

Contents

INTRODUCTION	1
PART ONE JAPAN'S DECISION
1. The Background of Japan's Disarmament Policy	9
2. New Weapons, New Strategy, and No Limitations	25
3. Public Opinion and the Navy's First Moves	41
4. The Navy's General Offensive	53
PART TWO UNITED STATES POLICY
5. Roosevelt's Foreign Policy and Japan	67
6. A Tentative Decision	83
PART THREE GREAT BRITAIN'S DILEMMA
7. The Economics of Appeasement and the Politics of Defense	97
8. The Royal Navy, Disarmament, and Anglo-American Misunderstanding	111
PART FOUR THE NEGOTIATIONS
9. The First Encounter	125
10. Britain Seeks a Compromise	137
11. The Second London Naval Conference	152
PART FIVE THE RACE
12. The Japanese Navy Charts a New Course	167
13. Britain's Sun Sets in the Pacific	179
14. A Steady Pace and a Sudden Sprint	196
15. Japan's Decision for War	212
CONCLUSION	227
BIBLIOGRAPHY	229
NOTES	240
INDEX	263

Illustrations

Map of the Western Pacific	x
Fig. 1. Attrition by Japanese midget submarines	37
Fig. 2. Attrition by advanced body of Japanese fleet	37
Fig. 3. Main Japanese fleet action	38
Fig. 4. Superior range of Yamato cannon	38