

GOR
1984

Sixth Edition

Introductory Economics

Sanford D. Gordon

Professor of Economics, Russell Sage College
Executive Director, New York State Council on Economic Foundation

George G. Dawson

Emeritus Professor of Economics,
Empire State College, State University of New York

D. C. Heath and Company

Lexington, Massachusetts

Toronto

Contents

Figures ix

Tables xi

PART I The Framework of Economics 1

1 Economics: What It Is and What It Tries To Do 3

A The Professional Economist: Deity or Dunce? 4

B Economics as a Discipline 7

C The U.S. Economic System 16

APPENDIX Reading and Working with Tables and Graphs 23

2 Demand and Supply: An Answer to Resource Allocation 29

A The Market 30

B How Demand Functions in the Classical Model 32

C How Supply Functions in the Classical Model 38

D How Price Is Determined 43

REVIEW MODEL Demand and Supply 48

3 Economic Systems Other Than Capitalism 56

A What Economic System? The Theory 57

B What Economic System? The Reality 64

C The Problem: Progress or Weakness in the Soviet Economy? 70

PART II The Factors Responsible for Production 77

4 Business Enterprise 79

A Characteristics of Business Enterprise 80

B	Forms of Business Organization	82
C	Evolution and Concentration of Business	88
D	Can Small Business Survive?	95

5 Costs, Prices, and Output in Competitive Markets 104

A	Fixed, Variable, and Total Costs	105
B	Output and Price in Competitive Markets	115

6 Costs, Prices, and Output in Imperfectly Competitive Markets 128

A	Monopoly	129
B	Oligopoly	132
C	Monopolistic Competition	137
REVIEW MODEL	Long-Run Equilibrium	140

7 Labor: Its Uses and Rewards 146

A	The Role of Labor in Production	147
B	How Wages Are Determined	152
C	A Sketch of the Labor Movement	158
D	Labor-Management Relations: Focus for Conflict	160
E	New Approaches to Work	165

8 Natural Resources, Capital, and Entrepreneurship: Their Uses and Rewards 174

A	Production and Distribution Characteristics of the Factors of Production	175
B	Natural Resources and Rent	178
C	Capital and Interest	183
D	Entrepreneurship and Profits	187
E	The Problem: Does the Classical Model Distribute Income Fairly to the Factors of Production?	190
REVIEW MODEL	Pricing the Factors of Production	193

9 Government and Its Developing Role in the Economy 198

A	The Nature of Government's Role in the Economy	199
B	The Nature of Government Expenditures	204
C	The Nature of Government Revenue	207
D	The Federal Tax System	211
E	State and Local Government Revenue	214
F	Evaluating the U.S. Tax System	218
G	Public Borrowing and the Public Debt	222

10	The Consumer's Role in the U.S. Economy	229
A	Consumer Sovereignty	230
B	Relation of Demand Creation to Consumer Spending	233
C	Consumer Credit: A Factor in Demand	236
D	Protecting Consumers	239

PART III The U.S. Economy as a Whole 243

11	Measuring the Nation's Economy	245
A	National Income Accounting	246
B	Measuring Business Activity	256

12	National Income Analysis: A Different Model	266
A	Full Employment Without Inflation: The Classical Answer	267
B	The Model with Government Excluded	274
C	The Model with Government Included	282
	REVIEW MODEL National Income Determination	294

13	Money and Prices and Their Relation to the Economy	299
A	Money: Its Functions and Characteristics	300
B	The Relation Between Money and Prices	304
C	The Problem: How Much Inflation is Tolerable?	312

14	Banking, Money Creation, and the Federal Reserve	318
A	Kinds of Financial Institutions	319
B	Commercial Banks and the Creation of Money	323
C	The Federal Reserve System	328
D	The Problem: How Effective Is Monetary Policy in Achieving Our Economic Goals?	338

PART IV Contemporary Problems of the U.S. Economy 345

15	Formulating Modern Economic Policy	347
A	Our Nation's Economic Goals	348